§ 1. Can you imagine the whole day without telling lies? 'Yes, of course,' most people would answer, but then they've probably forgotten all those little lies that are said so easily – 'This is delicious.' 'You look lovely in that shirt.' 'I'd love to come with you,' etc. Lying is a way of making life run more smoothly.

§ 2. We are told not to lie from the moment we learn how to do it. According to psychologist Richard Wiseman, this is at the age of about four when children realise they can deceive people. We are not born liars. In childhood, the line between imagination and lying is often not clear. Children are praised for creative imagination but generally criticised for hiding the truth.

§ 3. As adults we have definite ideas about which kind of lies are OK and which are not. Very often the reason for the lie is the important thing in accepting or rejecting the lie.

§ 4. Generally speaking there are three types of lies, and liars. The first sort of liar wants to please people, the second wants to protect him or herself, the third sort doesn't care about other people and lies to get what he or she wants.

§ 5. If someone is fishing for compliments and you tell them what they want to hear, you probably think it's a 'kind' lie. However, you get something as a result of this lie – affection, friendship, peace and quiet. When you lie for self-protection, the reason is clearer. To explain your lateness, you tell your boss the train was cancelled, not that you overslept. You cannot be blamed for being late, because you are not responsible for the 'behaviour' of the train and the consequences. The third sort of lie could be more dangerous. It is, for example, the kind that people tell in order to climb up the ladder at work, without caring who gets hurt in the process.

§ 6. But what about being lied to? Can you spot when someone is telling you a lie? Apparently there are some verbal clues – lots of urns and ahs – and liars take longer to answer a question. They also speak faster but don't always give the right amount of detail. And then there's body language. Experts say there are certain things that can help identify someone who's not telling the truth. Speaking through their fingers and putting the hands over the face is one. Playing with their hair or clothes and being unable to stay still for any length of time is another. But the truth of the matter is that we all lie at some time, and if anyone tells you they don't, they're lying.

A37. According to the text, lying

- 1) makes one's life easier.
- 2) develops a person's intellectual ability.
- 3) is saying something which we are not sure of.

A38. The difference between lying and imagination

- 1) is not defined by psychologists.
- 2) can hardly be grasped by a child.
- 3) disappears as one grows up.

A39. In the text the author

- 1) explains that children are taught to lie by adults.
- 2) proves that lying is something people are born with.
- 3) puts lying into different categories.

A40. When you lie for self-protection

- 1) your lie can be detected (раскрыта).
- 2) nobody is harmed.
- 3) you try to find someone else to be punished for your faults.

When I graduated from cookery school, I could have applied for jobs in ski chalets or on board ships sailing around the Caribbean. Instead, I applied to work in a fashionable fast-food restaurant and suddenly found myself working very long hours in hot, sweaty kitchens full of completely crazy characters.

I thought that starting at the bottom of the food chain, as opposed to the high life of skiing and sailing, would be good training. (A43) _____

At 7.45 each morning I stagger into the kitchen with all the other cooks, exhausted from working a 10-hour shift the night before. (A44) _____ Nothing is where it should be. Vegetables have been left on the floor and raw fish has been left uncovered in the fridge. A couple of dustbins have not been emptied and everything has to be cleaned before we can begin the day's work.

(A45) _____ I fill a sink with water, throw in several box loads of the stuff and wash each leaf separately. My hands are so cold I can hardly feel them.

Between 9 and 10, the line chefs start arriving. These are the people who get all the glory. They swan around the kitchens shouting orders at the poor cooks like me whose job it is to prepare all the ingredients.

But if anything goes wrong once the customers' orders start coming in, you can guess who gets the blame. If they run out of sauce, then it's the cook's fault for not preparing enough in the first place. (A46) _____

The chefs are only under pressure at particular points in the day. The cooks are under pressure all the time.

(A47) _____ This is when the waiters get told what the day's special menus are. Then, no sooner are we back in the kitchen to start the lunch service than three deliveries of food and drink arrive all at the same time. (A48) _____ I am faced with carrying boxes of frozen chips or bottles of fruit juice from the lorries down two flights of stairs to the store rooms.

Заполните пропуски A43–A45 одним из предложенных текстовых фрагментов (1–4). Один фрагмент является лишним.

- 1) I arrive home twelve hours after I left.
- 2) I couldn't have been more wrong.
- 3) There's been a break of just about four hours and the kitchen has not been tidied from last night.
- 4) My first job of the day is chopping and shredding leaves and lettuces for salads.

Заполните пропуски A46–A48 одним из предложенных текстовых фрагментов (1–4). Один фрагмент является лишним.

- 1) Before we open at midday, all the staff meet in the restaurant.
- 2) If the chicken goes cold, then it's the cook's fault for not keeping it in the oven longer.
- 3) This is why I like lunch time most.
- 4) This means I get sent to sort them out.
